

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method and apparatus are provided for fetching data from a memory component. Parameters relating to data fetching may be obtained based on an operating frequency of a bus. These parameters may be stored in registers and include an initial request length, an initial threshold length, a subsequent request length, and a subsequent threshold length. Data may be fetched from the memory component based on the obtained parameters.